Instructor:

Chandra Dawson, LISW, LCSW

Chandra Dawson, LISW, LCSW is a licensed clinical social worker with more than 20 years of experience leading trauma-informed, anti-oppressive programs that support individuals and communities impacted by violence, homelessness, poverty, and systemic inequities. As Executive Director of Peace For DC and Founder of The MACRO Project, she provides training, technical assistance, and organizational consultation focused on intersectional trauma, cultural humility, racial equity, and strengthening trauma-informed systems of care.

Drawing from extensive leadership experience with organizations including Friendship Place, the DC Rape Crisis Center, My Sister's Place, Catholic Charities, and Whitman-Walker Health, Chandra helps clinicians and community organizations better understand how trauma, identity, privilege, and systemic barriers shape healing. Her engaging, practice-focused approach equips participants with practical strategies for delivering more culturally responsive, equitable, and effective care to marginalized populations.
